

Be the Light!

The Light comes whether you bid it to come or not. It makes no difference how much you fight or set yourself in turmoil. The Light will come.

Was it you that bid it come? No, by no means. It is the Will of the Universe that the Light shall come. Maybe not tomorrow, but as time passes, the Light will come.

Dawn is not a set event. It emerges out of the darkness. That is its nature. You see, the sun hides. Clouds get in the way. Yet storms disturb it not in its peregrinations. Take heed how the Light dawns upon you, how its radiance seeks you through the clouds—clouds of indecision, clouds of confusion, clouds of fear and doubt.

Yet does the Sun persist? Yes. I believe it does. No matter how fiercely you may oppose it, the sun will appear. The Light WILL come. The Light DOES come.

You cannot stay the Light. The Light is in you, the Light is in every cell of your Being and the Light is in All—the All and One, the One and All.

The Light is a haven for all who seek truth, for all who desire goodness, for those who lift their hearts with compassion, for those who labor for the good of others. Indeed the Light dwells among us. There is not one of us without Light. So behold the Light that is in you and the Light that is in One and All.

Look around. Maybe you can't see the Light for the clouds within your own vision. Yet the Light is there. Even in the dark, the Light is there. The Light does come without fail, in your deepest darkest moments, the Light will prevail. Lift up your hearts and understand that this, the Light, is upon you, the Light is within you, the Light surrounds you.

All is Light. Nothing can defeat the Light. You, too, are indomitable. The promise within you must emerge. The Light cannot stay hidden.

You must speak. Speak the Truth within you and the Light within you will dawn. And so light the way for others to behold, to mark their footsteps, to follow in the Light that leads their path to ever higher echelons of Being, into the higher consciousness, into the wave of new beginnings, mounting up with Joy and the remarkable Light that is now upon you.

Savor the Light. Cherish the Light. Be the Light. For you are the Light and wherever you go, your Light will shine.

Your Light is inextinguishable, however and whichever way the wind blows. Steady the Light that is within you and give forth to the promise you have made to beam your Light abroad, to hold hands in the Light, and walk with one another the path that is before you.

The heavens are opening to your cognizance. Take heed. The Light is upon you. Do not fear.

No greater love is there than that of the Light—the Light Everlasting that whispers to every cell and spreads its wings that you might fly—into the night, bearing the Light, shining the way for all to follow. Let the Light be your guide. Do not fear to be the Light that you are, for the Light can withstand all assaults and the darkness can never prevail against it.

The Light is omnipotent and so are you! Hold onto the Light. Be the Light! Let no shadow approach you. The Light is Divine and in that Divinity, you are the Light. Let no one say otherwise for the Light is in you now and forever.

Sing unto the Earth a New Song! The Light has emerged. It is here. Now. Be the Light! You are the Light! So be it!

I am Michael.

Message channeled December 20, 2016, Winter Solstice
©Karen A. Shaffer 2016 (may be freely disseminated)
www.WhiteEagleSpeaks.net