

No progress will be made if you but weep

I am Metatron.

You cannot weep. No progress will be made if you but weep. Progress depends upon you—what you think, what you do, what you believe—all within that heart of yours.

You say you want to stand for progress. Then you must progress in your thinking. All the World is One and if you attune your thinking to one another on a grand scale, then you shall see Progress.

How do we define Progress? It is that infinitesimal possibility becoming real—the thing you thought would never happen, but in your heart, you BELIEVE will happen, then it WILL happen. Progress is not something one can measure. It is not the usual concept that humanity throws around so casually. It can have a deeper meaning—a meaning that All Is Well, that All Will be Well, that All is Assuredly Well.

Progress means a heart swelled with hope and promise that never fails to believe in Infinite Goodness that surrounds this planet. No life can be assured that every promise will be delivered, and yet, in one dimension or another, that promise is fulfilled. Your task is to wait upon it, to understand that humankind is moving in a new direction, that all the safety stops you have heretofore provided are unleashed so that you may think anew of all that IS possible, all that CAN be, IF the Universe thinks as One.

It takes an ensemble to make music joyful, for it is the harmony of human hearts that attunes its truth to all who listen, to all who abide in the holiness of each hour, in the hugeness of each minute, of each act of compassion, of each tourniquet of healing, of each gesture of kindness.

Where does your heart sit amid the cacophony of human woe? Center it in the middle of Love—the Love that your heart knows and that your head acknowledges. Remember Who You Are. There is so much more that you can do when you remember Who You Are.

You have come from the heights to heal the world, to pour upon it Love and Compassion, to bring new awareness to all sentient beings, to awaken to the Light that shines within us all, to respond to the healing nudge of the human heart, to wake again to the reality of Life, to sing a new song to the planet Earth, to abide in the heart of the All, for in the All, we are All One.

The Earth is revolving into a New Age. Strike the match! And enlighten all you know—for you are all the Light of the world. You bear the torch of forgiveness, the warmth of compassion, and the insight of great Love.

Speak with your heart of hearts and let humanity know that all the Earth is yours to share, that all the Love encompasses ALL, and Peace lies within this realm.

Bless you, my child, bless you.
Amen
So be it.
