

The Song of the Earth

I am White Eagle.

The Earth resounds with the cry: "I Am". But no one hears it. The song of the Earth that wells up from its crystal core vibrates in every cell of your body. And yet if you do not place your bare feet upon the Earth and partake of this vibration, you will fail to hear it. For it has more to say to you than you can possibly imagine.

The Earth is at the core of your being. It rises up in you, in the kundalini that begins at your base chakra. This is the energy of the Earth, rising, always rising. Lifting you up. Holding you up. Like "the green fuse that drives the flower," so it is with you. The Earth energies push you ever upward so that you, too, may flower — in the beauty of the night as well as the glory of the day, promoting your oneness with the moon and your oneness with the sun — the unity of sun and moon that unites each cell within you, that unifies you with the Earth and all the energies thereof.

Here is the Divine Unity — that which unites you with the Earth, unites you also with the sun and moon, with the heavens above and all the glory of the stars that shine holy light upon you — that that Earthly part of you may be transmuted to the higher energies above, that you may feel the Divine working within each cell of your body, that you may know your unity with all things, that you may be whole — wholly yourself within the larger firmament, fully and completely at one with that which you are in the grand scheme of life.

For the Cosmos resides within you, ever expanding, ever expansive. It reigns supreme within each cell of your body. It makes itself felt through the soles of your feet and the yearnings of your heart.

There is no peace without love and no love without the ever-ringing cosmos that sounds within your ears. Imagine that you are flying through the universe at the speed of light. Imagine what you hear. Imagine what you see. Who are you then? Are you like the waves of light that wash through you? Are you reflective of the moon and sun within you? Do you not see that the universe holds all that you are within you?

The bride you seek is within you. The marriage of true hearts is that of the sun and moon within you with your feet anchored in the Earth. Watch and see. Feel the force within you that lives and moves your entire being. This is the motive force behind all life.

It is the will of the Creator that you should recognize your source within the Earth and rise to meet the sun and moon of your existence with your feet planted firmly in the Earth. For the energies of the Earth are welling up within you at all times, anchoring you to the crystal core beneath your feet. The expression of will that is planted in the Earth and seen through the growth of plants expresses the ingenuity of your creator and the mystery of all life.

Within the seed of contemplation lies the whole kernel of wisdom, the understanding that brings life to life. Sing always the song of the Earth and it will reward you with the song of Life that runs within you as the stream of consciousness runs through the entire universe.

Wait upon this strength and knowledge of your oneness with the All. There is no game that can be played without that ultimate piece of information that wells up from the Earth at your very feet. Be still. And listen to the Earth. Listen to your heart. For it rises up with song, the song of life everlasting — within you.

So be it.
