

The ONEder of Creation

I am White Eagle.

In the larger scheme of things, you think all should be perfect. And yet, it is not.

Perfect balance means stasis, all things the same, unchanging. Yet it is the nature of the universe to change, to move, to foster new creation. Its purpose is NOT to stay the same.

Overall, you have no need of perfection. Perfection is within you. It is yours. You need not strive for it. Yet, perfection itself may require slight imbalance so that movement may go forward.

The energetic impulse of the Universe enables all to create within the Creation itself, so that no matter what is happening, Creation itself is moving, always moving.

Imagine a flower growing. Each day you see its progress, moving a little bit higher out of the ground until it reaches its full potential. And when it blooms it is glorious. But then it fades and returns again to the earth that nurtured it. Even there in the earth you would say it is dormant, sleeping. But in that sleep, it is still alive and there is still movement. Though you cannot see it, yet it is there.

So when you think you reach a state of peace, yet that peace is always in movement, always in motion, activating peace far and wide.

So you dream of being at peace with everything in balance and yet that peace, alone, is moving, creating an imbalance — an imbalance toward movement and the movement follows that first impulse. That impulse is peace and that is the impulse that follows.

Peace creates peace. It is always in motion. So the perfection you seek is a perfection of impulse — the impulse that drives a flower to full bloom. The impulse within you is God-given. The First Impulse is Love. And Love is forever in motion. It is the seed of peace. It is the seed of all Creation. It brings forth the flower of peace that you seek.

So motion is not the antithesis of peace and motion is slightly unbalanced or creates a slight imbalance in order to create. Everything is in motion. Everything vibrates. So everything is never in "perfect" balance. It is always moving toward that perfect balance, but in order to create.

The process of creation is in itself a movement that tips the balance that moves the stasis, that keeps everything in motion — simply to create. And the Love that drives the Creation is within you. It is within all. And we are all One.

It is the ONEder of Creation — the imperfect balance that is so perfect in its conception. The Universe moves to the heartbeat of Love.

Peace and peace and peace be with you, now and forever.
Bless you, dear one. So be it.
