

Reflect on the Path

I am White Eagle.

The path you have chosen to take is not the same path that others may take. Each one follows his own path. It may be that it meanders. It may be a straight path. It may be curved with sharp turns at unexpected places. At times it may just meander.

Yet, surely, each path leads to the same end —

To the revelation of the power within each individual being. To awaken to the necessity of feeding the flame that burns within. To dwell wholly within the pleasures of that temple — that temple of wholeness and of holiness that gleams within the human heart.

You ask me, what shall I say to my people? And I answer: Hope. Peace. Follow the Light Within. Peace rises with the new moon and shines with glory in its fullness — calming, gently healing, soothing the wounds within. Sit by the light of the full moon and absorb its healing pleasures for it is soft and gentle and soothing in its touch of reflected light upon your face. Understand, in this reflection, all is at peace and wholly healed within.

The reflection of your own face in the light of the moon foreshadows all that is to come. For you are bound by the light of the moon to ever reflect the glory that is within you.

There is no passage beyond this point that is NOT healing. Reflect on the path that you have taken and all that is yet to come and understand the nature of the being that you are. Whatever path you are on — it is the right one for YOU.

Secure its meaning within your heart of hearts and know that the truth dwells within you. Knock on the door that resonates with Truth and it will open to you a world beyond your imagining, yet clearly on the way of your path. Sing lightly to yourself a new song — a song of revelation, a song of laughter, a song of joy — knowing that the truth lies deep within you and has always been so.

Ride the waves in the ocean of stillness for that great body of water upholds you yet. Allow the waves of consciousness to stream through you and wade in the ocean of emptiness that absorbs all into the bosom of love — that great Cosmic Heart that beats with joy and ever-refreshing waves of laughter and kindness and compassion and peace.

There might you reside forever in the cosmic dew of love and laughter, singing in your heart of hearts to the rhythm of the cosmic waves of eternal light and everlasting Being. Join the chorus. Sing your song. For it is the song of the Cosmos, the song of love and laughter, the song of Eternal Light. Let your whole being burst out with song and reflect who you are.

May peace and peace and peace be everywhere and always with you, my dear child. You are deeply loved.

So be it.

Message channeled August 10, 2014
©Karen A. Shaffer 2014 (may be freely disseminated)
www.WhiteEagleSpeaks.net