

Is There Hope?

I am White Eagle.

Are we all dead? Or is there Hope? So you ask.

Hope springs from Love. The Love that surrounds you each day, each night, each hour, each moment of your existence — in this garment of flesh — so even though you might not acknowledge it, yet, there is always HOPE.

And Hope for what, you ask? Hope for a better world? Hope for more kindness? Hope for true kinship? Hope for feeling Love? What sort of Hope?

Hope there is to return to your True Self, to know wholly who you are, to understand the sequence of events, to understand how you came into being, to understand what it is all about.

The earth is moving slowly, evolving toward that for which you Hope. For it is the dream that makes the reality that you feel. Creativity is more than you reckon for you are creators in and of yourselves. What you Hope for is what you create. If you Hope for life, you will have life. If you Hope for joy, you will have joy. If you Hope for Love, you will have Love. In every dream of Hope, there is the seed of perfection, of bringing into being that which is perfect.

How casually you dream! Dream now with intent, with true purpose engraved in your hearts so that you will know what is true. You will know the reality beyond your dreams, the essence of all that is, the purity of existence. The tumbleweed of hellish dreams will fall away.

All that you are will be revealed to you and you will stand tall in the Light that you inspire with your dreams, with your visions of Hope. Way beyond your tales of woe there is a land of Light, a land of purity, a land of Love and true kinship for the reality is — We Are All One — we are One in the Light, we are One in Love, we are One in Joy, we are One in all our Being. There is no separation, only in the dreams that you fear. The Truth is — there is no separation. We are all One.

So yes, Hope is at the bottom of our dreams and if our dreams be true, they are wholesome, of healing, of laughter, of joy, of overwhelming Love for one and all. For we are all One and in that Oneness we thrive, we live, we do not perish, we awaken to the Light, to the Love that surrounds us, to the joy within us, to the true meaning of Being, to the true wholesomeness of all that is and all that we are and ever shall be.

This is the Peace I give to you. Be settled in yourself. Be aware of who you truly are. Let your Hopes and dreams rise ever higher, uplifting your soul into the realm of delight, where all is perfect, all is good, all is well. Remember who you are. The earth has need of you. Awaken to your true self. Now is the time. Be well! Be wholly yourself! Love one another, for you are loved beyond your imagining and you are well beyond your hopes and dreams, for all is well, and all is well, and all is well, now and forever.

We are all One!

Bless you, my child. Bless you.

Aum.

So be it.

Amen.
